

The following list of amendments, relative to the set of claims submitted on April 1, 2009, is provided for the Examiner's convenience:

Claim 66

[base assembly] has been replaced with base structure

[a second support arm secured to said first support arm and having at least a pair of coupling assemblies for securing to portions of first and second display panels] has been replaced with a second support arm secured to said first support arm and having at least a pair of coupling assemblies for securing first and second display panels, the second support arm being readily detachable from the first support arm

[having at least one coupling assembly for supporting a third display panel on said third support arm] has been replaced with having at least a pair of coupling assemblies for securing third and fourth display panels

[wherein said third support arm may be readily detached from said first support arm to enable said display system to be modularly configured to support two display panels and modularly configured to support three or more display panels] has been replaced with the third support arm being readily detachable from said first support arm

Claim 85

[base assembly] has been replaced with base structure

[a second support arm secured to said first support arm and having at least one pair of coupling assemblies for securing to portions of first and second display panels] has been replaced by a second support arm secured to said first support arm and having at least a pair of coupling assemblies for securing first and second display panels, the second support arm being readily detachable from the first support arm

[a third support arm secured to said first support arm and having at least one coupling assembly for supporting a third display panel on said third support arm] has been replaced with a third support arm secured to said first support arm and having at least a pair of coupling assemblies for supporting third and fourth display panels

[wherein said third support arm may be readily detached from said first support arm to enable said display system to be modularly configured to support two display panels and modularly configured to support three or more display panels] has been replaced with the third support arm being readily detachable from the first support arm

Claim 87

[base assembly] has been replaced with base structure

Claim 113

[base assembly] has been replaced with base structure

Claim 115

[base assembly] has been replaced with base structure